⇒ Identify your Business in Government Terms

- Identify your North American Industry Classification Code (NAICS), which describes what your business does. Identify your NAICS by running keyword searches on the US Census Bureau's NAICS System website: <https://www.census.gov/naics/>. You need the full 6-digit numbers. Remember, you may have more than one code that describes your business and when you register in SAM.gov, but will need to identify your primary NAICS code.
- Identify your Product Service Code(s) (PSCs), which describes what type of contract opportunities your business can perform. Identify your PSCs by going to the PSC Manual; selecting the link to download the "PSC April 2022.xlsx" spreadsheet and then doing a keyword search in column B of the spreadsheet. You may find it helpful to supplement your column B keyword search with columns E and F keyword searches. Alternatively, you can download the PSC Manual in PDF or Word formats if you prefer to search using the full manual.
- Determine if you qualify as a small business. There is a separate size standard for each NAICS. Once you know your NAICS, visit the Small Business Administration's website <https://www.sba.gov/federal-contracting/contracting-guide/size-standards> to look up the size standards for each NAICS code

⇒ Connect with NCMBC Technology Systems. Register on the NCMBC website to be added to the NCMBC ecosystem.

- To register, visit <https://www.ncmbc.us/> and select the red banner at the top of the homepage. Complete the online form, being sure to include NAICS and/or PSC codes for accurate contract opportunity matching
- Once registered, POCs of business with North Carolina addresses will begin receiving one daily email with federal contracting opportunities directly aligned to their business' capabilities (based on NAICS and/or PSC codes). All registered businesses, regardless of address, will receive event notices and federal contracting news.

⇒ Register on the System for Award Management (SAM.gov) to become a federal contractor.

Contracting guide

Learn the steps to sell your small business products and services to the largest customer in the world: the U.S. government.

Benefits of government contracting

Government contracts are a tremendous financial opportunity for small businesses.

The U.S. government is the largest customer in the world. It buys all types of products and services — in both large and small quantities — and it's required by law to consider buying from small businesses.

The government wants to buy from small businesses for several reasons, including:

- To ensure that large businesses don't "muscle out" small businesses
- To gain access to the new ideas that small businesses provide
- To support small businesses as engines of economic development and job creation
- To offer opportunities to disadvantaged socio-economic groups

How it works

The process of requesting proposals, evaluating bids, and awarding contracts should take place on a level playing field. The government should consider a bid from any qualified business.

Get acids and sale course contracts

The process of requesting proposals, evaluating bids, and awarding contracts should take place on a level playing field. The government should consider a bid from any qualified business.

Set-aside and sole-source contracts

Federal agencies must publicly list their contract opportunities. Some of these contracts are set aside exclusively for small businesses.

In some cases, these so-called set-aside contracts might consist of certain types of tasks on larger contracts. In others, entire contracts may be reserved for small businesses. When a contract is set-aside for one specific small business, it's called a sole-source contract.

SBA's role in contracting

SBA works with federal agencies in order to award 23% of prime government contract dollars to eligible small businesses. It also offers counseling and help to small business contractors.

Contracting assistance programs

Find out how to certify your small business, and qualify for contracts reserved for firms that meet certain socio-economic conditions.

Contracting assistance program benefits

The federal government uses special programs to help small businesses win at least at 23% of all federal contracting dollars each year. SBA provides several programs to help small businesses win these federal contracts. Participating in these programs helps small businesses:

- Win a fair share of federal contracts
- Qualify for exclusive set-aside and sole-source contracts
- Partner with established contractors to win contracts
- Get business mentoring and education to learn how federal contracting works

Women-Owned Small Business Federal Contract program

The federal government's goal is to award at least 5% of all federal contracting dollars to women-owned small businesses (WOSBs) each year.

Veteran contracting assistance programs

Program structure

Small business contracting goals

The government works to make sure small businesses get at least 23% of all federal contracting dollars.

Additionally, the government tries to award a certain percentage of all federal prime contracting dollars to small businesses that meet certain socio-economic conditions.

Small business category	Contracting dollar award goal
Women-owned small business	5%
Small disadvantaged business	5%
Service-disabled veteran-owned small business	5%
Small business in a HUBZone	3%

For some large contracts that can't be awarded directly to small businesses, the government requires a small business subcontracting plan as part of the award. A small business subcontracting plan directs the prime contractor to subcontract out parts of the award to small businesses. A subcontracting plan is required when these conditions are met:

- The contract is expected to exceed $750,000 ($1.5 million for construction).
- There are capable small businesses who could do subcontract work at a fair market value, without significantly disrupting performance

The rules that govern subcontracting plans are set forth in Subpart 19.7 of the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR).

Set-asides

To help provide a level playing field for small businesses, the government limits competition for certain contracts to small businesses. Those contracts are called “small business set-asides,” and they help small businesses compete for and win federal contracts.

Some set-asides are open to any small business, but some are open only to small businesses who participate in SBA contracting assistance programs.

How to participate in contracting assistance programs

To participate in any of SBA's small business contracting assistance programs, you'll first need to qualify as a small business. SBA's size standards determine whether or not your business qualifies as small.

Most of the socio-economic programs require some form of certification. Many programs use MySBA Certifications to let you certify or do a preliminary check to see if you're qualified.

However, each program has its own standards and process for certification, so make sure to read carefully.

Introduction to NAICS

The North American Industry Classification System (NAICS) is the standard used by Federal statistical agencies in classifying business establishments for the purpose of collecting, analyzing, and publishing statistical data related to the U.S. business economy.

NAICS was developed under the auspices of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), and adopted in 1997 to replace the Standard Industrial Classification \(SIC\) system. It was developed jointly by the U.S. Economic Classification Policy Committee \(ECPC\), Statistics Canada, and Mexico's Instituto Nacional de Estadística y Geografía, to allow for a high level of comparability in business statistics among the North American countries.

This official U.S. Government Web site provides the latest information on plans for NAICS revisions, as well as access to various NAICS reference files and tools. Additional information on the background and development of NAICS is available in the History section of this Web site.

Introduction to NAICS

The North American Industry Classification System (NAICS) is the standard used by Federal statistical agencies in classifying business establishments for the purpose of collecting, analyzing, and publishing statistical data related to the U.S. business economy.

NAICS was developed under the auspices of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), and adopted in 1997 to replace the Standard Industrial Classification \(SIC\) system. It was developed jointly by the U.S. Economic Classification Policy Committee \(ECPC\), Statistics Canada, and Mexico's Instituto Nacional de Estadística y Geografía, to allow for a high level of comparability in business statistics among the North American countries.

This official U.S. Government Web site provides the latest information on plans for NAICS revisions, as well as access to various NAICS reference files and tools. Additional information on the background and development of NAICS is available in the History section of this Web site.
